

Typical heat losses from an uninsulated house
In a typical uninsulated timber-framed house, 30-35% of heat is lost through the roof, 21-31% through the windows and 18-25% through the walls. The floor and "air leakage" account for the remaining heat loss.
© BRANZ 2007