

Simple type of greywater filter

Unfiltered greywater will tend to clog an irrigation system. In a simple filtration device such as this, greywater is distributed by gravity flow into a tank containing the filter material. The filter consists of a top layer of bark, a separating filter-cloth and a sand layer. The water flows continuously through the filter and directly to the irrigation system.

© BRANZ 2007